

Check Out the New Cognascents Training Schedule

The best way to stay ahead of your competitors during a sluggish market is to keep making progress. With that in mind, Cognascents is providing special deals on each of their training courses.

Our industry trained instructors are "working" instructors, which means they are not retired and still very much in the "know" regarding the new recommended practices and interpretations relevant to their fields.

Visit Cognascents at the 12th GCPS in Houston

Cognascents will be presenting their new paper on Meticulous Verification at this year's Global Congress on Process Safety, put on by AIChE's CCPS

From our presentation, you will learn that Meticulous Verification provides the perpetual assurance of integrity for an organization's dynamic process safety management program. Meticulous Verification specifically calls for collaboration between companies and third-party entities to ensure comprehensive and ongoing assessment of process safety management's effectiveness.

We will also teach how a company can apply these core ideas to both HAZOP

Cognascents Integrity Blog

As a kid, Lent was a time when I had to “give something up”. So I would give up candy or TV for as long as possible. I admit that my intent as a youth was never to give up candy or TV forever. I think my parents were more focused on the exercise and reinforcement of the tradition than the actual conversion aspect of Lent (at least with respect to me). Today, many Catholics still view Lent as a season of sacrifice only rather than a season of sacrifice with the genuine intent of conversion or change...
